AROUND the TOWNSHIP

When Jack Vieux's father, a good many years ago, learned that the boy wanted to get away from the old farm and go to the city, he was 'agin' it. The elder Vieux had come to San Francisco from France in the 80's. He had started out with nothing, had done farm labor, then leased a small place in the Sunol district and worked it with borrowed teams, had prospered slowly; and, by the time Jack was feeling his oats, was doing very well. "You won't stay in the city. You'll be back," was the gist of his argument with young Jack.

But Jack fooled him, for a long time, at least. He stayed in the city, studied commercial art for a while, worked for power companies and learned the electrical business from the ground up. When he did come back to Washington Township, it was not as a farmer but as a member of the pioneer electrical firm in these parts. Vieux Brothers are responsible for the tremendous amount of electrical work in the Graham plant at Newark and in many other large factories in southern Alameda county.

Nearly all township merchants take a pride in the appearance of their places of business. Some regularly dust off their windows and sweep their sidewalks each morning. A few go a step further and sweep up the street in front of their places with their own hands. Three who do this regularly are F. V. Jones, who, with his assistant, Mrs. Mosegardt, gets out in gutter each morning with a broom and trash box; Bill Cavanaugh, who generally builds a small bonfire, and J. D. Ferry, who keeps a militant eye out for trash droppers.

Running a grammar school is a difficult and particular job. Grammar school principals very often are made targets for bone-picking because children are hard to reason with and parents are inclined to take their offsprings' part. Up at Irvington, they say, Tom Scales never has any trouble. The children in his school are all crazy about him. Parents like him, too.

We have a weakness for collecting data on how people name their pets. This week we learned that the new St. Bernard puppy at E. H. Hirsch's is called Bing because he croons. And the pet turtle which now has its abode in a pool in William Darrold Mette, jr.'s front yard is known as Jean Harlow because that is the name painted on her back by the pet store man who sold her to William's father.

PUBLISHERS AT LIVERMORE HOSTS

LIVERMORE — Southern Alameda county publishers were entertained during last week-end by Maitland Henry and R. K. Kingsley, Livermore publishers.

Nearly a dozen publishers and newspapermen were given a luncheon at Malley's grill Saturday afternoon, taken through the Veterans' hospital and the Concannon and Wente wineries and to Pine camp in the Livermore hills. While in Livermore, they met leaders of the rodeo association and heard plans for the annual rodeo on June 13 and 14.

Those attending the party included C. P. Button of the Tracy Press, A. Fleharty and Julian Henry of the Newman Index, Dave Hope, Earl Altamira and Henry of Livermore, Leon Lester of Pleasanton, Don Cruzon of the Oakland Tribune, E. H. Wilder, manager of the San Francisco office of the California Publishers' association, and Henry Alderman of the Township Register.

SENTENCED TO TEN DAYS

NILES — Francis Cornelius is serving a 10-day sentence in the county jail after pleading guilty before Judge J. A. Silva to a charge of disturbing the peace. He was accused of attempting to board an auto stage while in an intoxicated condition and of becoming abusive when stage attendants refused to let him travel.

Elegy In Prose

By CARL S. KELTY

Next Saturday, May 30, will be observed by most of the nation as Memorial Day, the one holiday of the year when remembrance and mourning are uppermost—not gaiety or exultation.

The day is one when graves are decked with flowers, perhaps sprinkled with tears—when the forms of loved ones stand forth again in fancy, the tones of their voices echo through the vale of memories.

Longfellow's poem might have been written for Memorial Day:

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,
But one dead lamb is there!
There is no fireside, howso'er defended,
But has one vacant chair!"

The innumerable caravan swells with each passing year, and those left behind find themselves dwelling more and more in their meditations with the company that has marched ahead.

Not many need the reminder of Memorial Day to prompt thoughts of their own loved ones who have passed out of time. But it serves well as a formal occasion for public acknowledgment that gratitude to national heroes is not forgotten.

WRIGHT TELLS OF FIRE DEP'T PLANS

IRVINGTON — About 50 members of the Irvington Junior Chamber of Commerce heard R. J. Wright discuss plans for the Irvington fire department Monday evening. Carl Christenson assisted Wright in presenting plans for a bond issue to finance purchase of equipment.

The group went on record as approving the plans and offered to assist the fire commission in its program.

Letters from Irvington school teachers thanking the junior chamber of commerce for its organization of a schoolboy patrol were read. Joe Perry and E. L. Rose won the attendance prize.

To love one's work is half of contentment.

Jr. Chamber Promises Big Time at Picnic

NEWARK JUNIORS TO PRESENT PLAY

NEWARK — A play, "When Phoebe Cleans House," will be presented some time in June for the benefit of the Newark Junior Chamber of Commerce street sign project. Members of the group approved the plan at their last weekly meeting and named Frank Jones as director.

J. R. Nunes, A. E. Francis, Manuel Santos, Frank Neves and Henry Fields are members of the committee in charge of the plan. Although the junior chamber of commerce has had street signs put up on one side of the town's streets, members say that unless signs are put on both sides of main intersections, motorists passing through can read them only when traveling in one direction.

Four new members joined the junior chamber last week. They are Frank Martin, James Miller, Arthur Hempleman and Fred Green. They will be initiated at the next meeting. At that time the group will consider recent suggestions that a boy scout troop be organized in Newark.

BETTY RORABACK WINS AWARD OF U. C. SCHOLARSHIP

CENTERVILLE — Betty Roraback, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Roraback, has been awarded the University of California alumni freshman scholarship, it was announced this week. The scholarship is presented by the Washington township alumni group.

Miss Roraback has been prominent in school affairs during her four years at Washington Union high school. She is one of the two student speakers on the commencement program, and was picked as an outstanding girl by the D. A. R. in its reecnt contest.

The alumni award is based on citizenship, scholastic achievement and leadership.

NILES CHAMBER GOES ON RECORD VS. SINGLE TAX

NILES — That the proposed single tax on real estate, to be submitted to a vote of the people in the November election as a substitute for the state sales tax, is a highly unsound measure, and should be defeated, was declared in a resolution adopted unanimously by the Niles Chamber of Commerce. The Niles group took action when the question was submitted to the local body by the State Chamber of Commerce.

The reason that there is so much room at the top is that there is more fun at the bottom.

NILES—Members of the Niles Junior chamber of commerce are working their heads off to make the organization's second annual picnic at Stonybrook park, their biggest and best yet.

Games and races, a tug of war with Irvington as the probable opponent, steaks barbecued by Art Roderick, and dancing in abundance will all be part of the festivities.

Date for the affair is next Sunday, May 31.

General chairman Ray Compton has been busy all week with details. Assisting him are L. L. Lewis, Barney Baiocchi, Roderick, C. Pine and Frank Mellow, Joe Pioletti, John Brown and Guido Tuana.

Compton and his workers expect several hundred people and plans for feeding them all are taking shape.

The committee's idea is to keep some sort of entertainment under way at all times. Local and professional talent will provide amusemet.

TWO NOTABLES METZGER GUESTS

MISSION SAN JOSE—Lieutenant Commander George A. Novelle of the U. S. Navy, is again visiting at the home of Sam Metzger at the Mission. Novelle was second in command of the Admiral Byrd expedition to the south pole.

Lloyd Stearman, famous airplane designer, likewise is a guest of Metzger, who was the pioneer aviator in these parts.

ANTHONY SILVA, FUTURE FARMER, RECEIVES AWARD

CENTERVILLE—Anthony Silva, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Silva, was honored last week at a student assembly in the high school when Loren Marriott of the Bank of America presented him with a certificate of merit in behalf of the California Bankers' association for his work as most outstanding future farmer of the year.

Young Silva has been head of the local Future Farmers' Chapter, has conducted an investigation of new corn varieties, has made $200 by raising 10 heifers and 50,000 tomato plants, has been regional winner in public speaking contests ad took thirdplace in the state contest at Los Angeles, is president of the south coast region of Future Farmers, is vice president of the newly formed state Future Farmers' association and has received the degree of state farmer.

Joe Jason, who has been ill in San Jose for some time, has returned to his home. He was brought back by Botelho's ambulance.

5000 TO JOIN THREE DAYS OBSERVANCE

MISSION SAN JOSE — Nearly three days of festivity, at which more than 5000 persons are expected, will begin here Saturday night when the local chapter of the I. D. E. S. starts its annual Holy Ghost observance.

The more than 100 members of the local chapter of the lodge have been busy for several days preparing for the parades, barbecues, dances, fireworks and other entertainments which will make up the program.

Seven steers have been purchased, great quantities of food are being cooked, drill teams are practicing and the lodge festival grounds are nearly ready for the influx of visitors.

Although Mission San Jose is a small town, the fiesta here each year draws from far and wide, owing to the fact that it is observed on the site of the 139-year-old mission, twentieth of the twenty-two built by the early California fathers.

President Joe Madeiros of the I. D. E. S. chapter and his assistants, Joe Abreu, Joaquin Perry, Joe Azeveda and Joe Lewis, have been busy for several weeks with the preparations.

According to present plans, the program will start Saturday night with fireworks at the school grounds at 8 o'clock. Following will be an American and a Portuguese dance at the fiesta grounds.

On Sunday morning the fiesta will resume with a parade from the hall to the church at 9:45 o'clock. Delegates from lodges in Milpitas, Warm Springs, San Jose, Niles, Centerville, Newark, Alvarado and elsewhere will march in the train of Queen Dolores Lewis of Centerville. Queen Dolores' maids are Irene Brown and Myrtle Corey. At least five drill teams will be present, as well as a band from Centerville.

Queen Dolores will be crowned at the mass services in the church and the parade will re-form and march back to the fiesta grounds where a barbecue, food sale and dance will continue to 6 p. m.

The Sunday program will be repeated on Monday in its entirety.

SLOT MACHINES TAKEN IN RAID

NILES — Constable O. W. Ebright carried out a raid on unlawful slot machines in Washington Township business places last Friday, gathering in 15 of the allegal gaming devices. The raid was conducted on orders from Sheriff Driver and District Attorney Earl Warren.

Constable Ebright was accompanied by a truck, and the machines were carted to Oakland. About 35 machines were secreted the night before, news of the proposed raid having leaked out. The machines are owned by city racketeers and are operated on a commission basis.

NEW WATER MAIN SERVES DECOTO

DECOTO—Decoto patrons of the Public Utilities California corporation are now receiving their water supply through the company's new pipe line which was completed last week. Four thousand feet long, the main is constructed of the best pipe obtainable, says F. E. Glassbrook, local manager. It will insure patrons against loss of service through breaks and leakage.

DE SILVA DAUGHTER BORN

CENTERVILLE—Mr. and Mrs. George De Silva are the parents of a baby girl, Arlene Marie, born last week. Dr. Holeman attended.

Bank Now Ready for Bandits

IRVINGTON—"We are now in a position to argue with bandits," J. R. Blacow said this week in commenting on completion of the modernization program for the Bank of Alameda County building here.

Glass, which a pistol bullet will not penetrate, even when fired at close range; thick steel-lined counters and doors weighing hundreds of pounds; are among the additions to the bank building.

Some of the protective equipment installed is so new that very few banks have them. The safety glass is of a type that will be used in the pay stations on the bay bridge and in the treasurer's office in the new county court house. It is so heavy that it cannot be cut but must be cast to fit the frames into which it fits.

The bank's vault has a time lock combination which makes it burglar proof.

The bank is equiped with an alarm system which will sound in nearby business houses during a holdup. Irvington business men are urged to take the license number of any car near the bank whenever such an alarm sounds.

Outside windows of the bank have been enlarged to enable passersby to see everything that goes on inside. Thus a bandit will have no opportunity to hide his activities from the street.

Total cost of the improvements is about $7500, says Blacow. The work has been done after banking hours so that the noise would not interrupt customers. C. C. Dias was the contractor who executed the improvements.

Seeking Both Benefits

"Contentment is better than riches," said the readymade philosopher.

"True," replied Mr. Dustin Stax; "but my observation is that a man who is rich has a better chance of becoming content than a man who is contented has of becoming rich."

"Can you laugh at misfortune, as philosophers advise?"

"Perhaps I might learn," answered Senator Sorghum. "But why deliberately cultivate a bad sense of humor?"

Bob Davis Reveals

Log Book of the Skipper Who Sailed 1,298,810 Miles.

M. S. CHICHIBU MARU, PACIFIC OCEAN, JAPAN BOUND.

OUT of San Francisco, headed for the Orient, weather of the best, I proceed, in conformity with my invariable custom, to wangle a human interest chapter from the captain of this ship.

Not so easy! Penetrating to the forward cabin was simple enough, but tapping the well-springs of his memory was something else again.

"One stirring story from your life before the mast or on the bridge will satisfy," I said, lifting my eggshell teacup in salute.

His smile collapsed. "Nothing has occurred," he said, "nothing that is worth retelling. You shall see. Atwenty I became a cadet on the government ship Taisei Maru, ran the gauntlet of official promotion, became captain of the Matsuyama Maru, Nippon Yusen Kaisha line, April 28, 1918, and have sailed under the N. Y. K. ever since, with one year of World war service."

One Torpedo Adventure.

Commander S. Oya glanced into the depths of his teacup, pushed a box of cigars toward me and lapsed into silence.

"No adventures at sea, no wrecks, no mutinies, no typhoons, no romance, nothing out of your recollections to offer me?" I asked.

"Nothing so far, but there is yet time. The future may have something to offer; who can say?"

"Possibly there is a detail or two that you have forgotten."

His eyeballs seemed suddenly to invert themselves, as though striving to look backward. The expression of inscrutability deepened.

"No, there is nothing—yes, there was an incident that now comes back to me. Just a moment, I will look at the log of my life and give you the date." The seadog reached into a drawer of his desk and brought forth a small leather-covered book.

Thought I, this begins to look more like the real thing. "Here it is," he continued; "June 15, 1907, 5:30 p. m., off Plymouth during the war; heavy seas running. From the main deck, astern, scanning the water, I saw a dark outline slipping toward the starboard quarter, perhaps a hundred yards distant . . . seventy-five years, fifty yards, twenty-five yards, moving like a shadow. I leaned over the rail, certain that the time had come. The ship lifted in the tide, fell away; rose again from the trough, while the torpedo—and such it was—hesitated for a brief instant and then lunged onward. The way of a ship at sea is indeed a mystery. Gathering herself like some living thing, she plowed ahead, just as the torpedo, fired from an invisible submarine at close quarters, slipped by ten feet astern and disappeared."

Commanded 27 Ships.

"There must be something else in the crisp leaves of this volume," I said, wondering why it contained column after column of Arabic figures, interspersed with notations in Japanese.

"Recording the number of miles sailed, names of the ships under my command and a few statistical notes," he volunteered.

"How many miles and how many ships, Commander?"

"Up to January 1, 1936, the grand total reached 1,289,810 nautical miles on twenty-seven vessels, none of which was lost while under my command. The first million miles were completed 11:40 p. m. March 2, 1931, off Sokotia island on a voyage to Suez via Colombo. Approximately 3,000 officers and men served on ships that I have had the honor to captain. During all of that period of time not a single man had to be put in irons. The furthest point north reached during my travels is Hamburg, Germany, and the furthest south is Adelaide, Australia."

"Have you, throughout your voyaging ever observed a phenomenon at sea that could not be scientifically accounted for? Are there any insoluble mysteries hinted at in the log book? Have you developed any superstitions?"

"None. There is a reason for everything that may arise in human affairs. If there are sea serpents in the deep it has not been my privilege to behold them. Superstitions? . . ." With an expansive gesture, he tossed the whole theory into space.

"Married, of course?"

Again this realist, this methodical man who has logged his sea life with such meticulous care, turned the pages of the record. Presently his almond eyes sparkling, the mask of inscrutability swept from his face to make way for actual mirth, he placed an index finger on a single line.

"Yes, married . . . Kobe, Japan, May 28, 1914. One child, a daughter, also married, 1935. No grandchildren—as yet."

Woman Pirate Leads Attack and Slays Officer on Ship

How Tan Ching-chiao, the Chinese woman pirate, personally led the attack and killed the officer in command of the guards on a ship in the Tai Yi piracy has been revealed in Canton where she was taken for trial. Tan Ching-chiao boarded the ship disguised as a foreign woman of rank carrying a baby in her arms. She aroused no suspicion and once on board was able to distribute among her gang pistols and ammunition she had hidden in the stomach of the baby, which was dead.

The Chinese Pirate Queen is thirty-one years old. She ran away from home at fourteen and joined a gang operating on the high seas. She has been married twice, both times to pirate leaders.—London Answers.

Search After Truth

"WHEREVER the search after truth begins, there life begins. Wherever the search ceases, life ceases," says Ruskin. Truth may be found, indeed, but never in such wise as to end the search. It is a continuous revelation, and each day the soul that is seeking it will find it in some new form and place—in nature, in the written word, in the heart of man—and by the finding and transmitting into action shall know itself a living, growing soul.

The soul closes against hate when dove-eyed Mercy pleads.—C. Sprague.

Mrs. Harry Salz Tells Cheese Biscuit Secret

IRVINGTON—The other night Mr. and Mrs. Harry Salz entertained a numbe of guests at dinner. There were many ohs and ahs over the cheese biscuits which Mrs. Salz served.

Mrs. Salz has been persuaded that so delicious a secret should be shared with the world at large, or at any rate with Washington Township housewives. Here is how she ravished the hearts of her dinner guests:

INGREDIENTS

2 cups flour.
4 teaspoons baking powder.
3 tablespoons shortening.
½ teaspoon salt.
¾ cup milk.

Roll dough, cut and put biscuits in pan. Then melt together one package of Blue Hill pimento cheese and one cube of butter. Pour over the biscuits before baking them.

Simple, isn't it? But try and see how good it is.

JAMES H. HEATH

MASONIC HOME, Decoto—The question between two good fellows of which was entitled to be hailed for a few days as the "baby" of the Masonic Home, by coincidence having arrived as strangers at the same time from widely separated communities and neither knowing of the other being enroute was settled when they "checked in" under Superintendent Hartman's supervision.

The two men registered as R. M. Hamilton, Temblor lodge, 477, Fellows, Kern county, and George W. Gregory, Sunset lodge, 352, Los Angeles.

Pending receipt notice of their admittance to the Home Gregory had been entertained at the home of his daughter in Glendale while Hamilton had been the guest of friends at Modesto, which place he reached after a visit with other friends in Glendale.

The start for the automobile trip to Decoto was from Glendale and Modesto. Both automobiles stopped in front of the main entrance of the Home at the same time. In the trek up the three-five-seven symbolic steps Hamilton was one step in the lead at the top which automatically gave the "baby membership" honor to Gregory.

The result was that the two new arrivals became close friends. Moreover, they are among the jolliest members of the home family. Both are doing volunteer work in Foreman Fred Waite's crew of fifteen willing workers and most of the time are in each other's company.

"We work together, go around together, play pinochle together and are good friends as though we'd been boys together," says Hamilton with a chuckle.

BRIEF MENTION

A pleasing "something different" entertainment was provided for the home family Sunday afternoon, when Friendship lodge of San Jose, under the leadership of Ray McIntyre, junior warden, brought Miss Cherie Church and her pupils in instrumental music for a fine program of selections on the piano and violin. With the exception of Paul Mueller, accompanying the San Jose hosts, who sang a baritone solo, the entire program was given by boys and girls whose ages ranged from five to fifteen years. Yes, and Miss Cherie's master of ceremonies was fifteen year old Billy Walker, who played well the part, as well as rendering a piano solo with credit.

Rev. Godfrey Mathews, pastor of the Congregational church at Hayward, conducted the religious service Sunday afternoon.

By error it was stated in last week's letter that Louis Mittleman was the "associated inspector of the 29th district." It should have stated that Mittleman was the inspector and that his postoffice address is "Associated."

BROOKLYN LODGE VISITS

An event of interest the past week was the visit of Brooklyn lodge of Oakland, William Keay, Master, with the work in the third degree.

Members of the Home were pleased to read in the Oakland Tribune a meritorous article wit Melbourne McDowell, husband of the late Fanny Davenport, as the subject and which was written by Mrs. Gladys Williams of Niles, the Tribune correspondent.

Returning from Centerville Saturday evening a score of the members of the Home family brought interesting reports of the working of the third degree in masonry by Alameda lodge, No. 93. Two items of contributory interest are that Alameda is Superintendent Hartman's home lodge and the condidate and members of his family are interested in the welfare of the Masonic Home members.

The Rev. Henry J. McCall of San Leandro conducted the Sunday assembly hall, assisted by Miss Lamb and young lady members of her Decoto Christian Endeavor.

Following the service Prof. Ebert of San Jose presented Miss Enid Musgrove, aged 10, one of his pupils, in the playing on the violin of an interesting group of difficult music. Her work was highly commended by persons qualified to judge.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

STATE AWARDS NOT GENEROUS

Niles property owners are dissatisfied generally with the awards made to them by the state in taking over land for right-of-way for the new highway north and southeast of town. All the property owners have now received deeds from Sacramento, but not many are willing to sign. Most of the objection is not to the prices offered, but to failure to recognize damages in cutting up properties.

In many cases the damage is obvious. The Niles Home for the Aged, for example, is allowed $75 for an eight foot strip across the rear of its property. Since the road in front is to be closed, the new highway converts the back yard into the front, and vice versa. Worse, in case of the home, the noisy traffic will pass close to the windows of the sleeping quarters, which is likely to disturb the rest of aged and infirm persons.

Other properties whose owners are proud of their fine yards are concerned because their only entrance from a highway will now be at the back yard, with the highway close to the rear of the house. One farmer says his chicken yard will be in his front yard.

A fifteen acre tract of valuable lettuce land is cut in two in the middle. The owner claims no consideration is taken of damages in the settlement offered, and will refuse the amount tendered.

The state has the right of eminent domain and will take what it wants. Those dissatisfied with the awards can go into court, but such suits as a rule get the owner nowhere. Juries are inclined to take the view that public rights are paramount to private rights, and rarely are generous in fixing awards to be paid from the public treasury. Indeed, this is quite in accord with the recent trend of political practice.

If any suits are filed there will be no delay in the highway, the state simply giving bond and going ahead with the improvement.

The huge expenditure for the work is expected to be of much benefit to Washington Township business. The Township Register is now publishing the legal notice calling for bids, to be opened June 10. Several weeks may elapse before the bids have been checked and the contract awarded, but thereafter the work will go ahead without delay. About one year will be required to finish the job, according to present estimates.

LIFE BEGINS TODAY

Time is without existence, say the philosophers, and the super-scientists declare time and space are identical. The latter is a tough one for our work-a-day minds.

We say, "It is five o'clock"— and lo, as we say it the moment is past five o'clock. But each moment or hour is a thief if not employed in some beneficial way. Not to say we must work constantly. Reacreation is sometimes beneficial.

William Lyon Phelps, himself 70 years old, declared:

"I think I can point out the exact moment when a man begins to grow old. It is the moment, when, upon self-examination, he finds that his thoughts and reflections in solitude turn more to the past than to the future. If a man's mind is filled with memories and reminiscences instead of anticipation, then he is growing old."

More and more we learn from the authorities that work is an elixir of contentment, a bromide that quiets crying nerves. So, whatever your age, the years that are past have been lived, and whatever of life remains is in the future. Dr. Osler's famous quip about the value of chloroforming everyone at forty he later declared to be purely facetious. Most of Dr. Osler's greatest work was done far beyond that age.

At 74, the philosopher Kent wrote his "Anthropology," "Metaphysics of Ethics," and "Strife of the Faculties." At 79, Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote "Over the Teacups." At 80, Goethe finished "Faust." At 83, Tennyson wrote "Crossing the Bar."

The list is a partial one—it might be multiplied many fold. Commodore Vanderbilt at 83 completed his greatest 10 years of money-making. General von Hindenburg had retired from the army because of age when recalled by the world war and returned to win his victory of Tannenburg and to become Germany's greatest war hero and idolized president.

The Journal of the American Medical Association points out that life expectancy during the Middle Ages was estimated at 21 years. During the eighteenth century in France, 29 years was the average expectation of life, while in 1859 it was 40 years in the same country. In the United States in 1915, the life expectancy was 48 years, in 1925 it was 55 years, and in 1935 it reached 57.74 years.

These facts are often misinterpreted. As a matter of fact, life expectancy at ages 40, 50 or 60 is no more than half a century ago. Perhaps it is less, due to the greater tension of living. The figures refer to the average expectancy at birth, and are due almost exclusively to the twice-as-good chance a new born baby has of living to maturity.

But the real secret of long life, if that interests you, and provided you have picked the right ancestors—is continued work.

Foreclosure Started

MISSION SAN JOSE—On May 15 Mrs. Ida M. Shoemaker, mother-in-law of Mrs. Dorothy Spencer Randall, execrised her right as the holder of a deed of trust upon Mrs. Randall's property near Mission San Jose, and filed notice of defanlt.

Mrs. Randall is suing Chester E. Randall for divorce, one of her complaints being too much mother-in-law.

The property in question was inherited by Mrs. Randall from her aunt and guardian, Mrs. Jacob Hobson, formerly Mrs. John Curtner. It has been her home for the greater part of her life.

The "City of San Francisco" will operate on a 39 3-4 hour hour schedule between San Francisco and Chicago, cuttting approximately 19 hours from the fastest time now maintained on that run.

WASHINGTON UNION HIGH SCHOOL FUTURE FARMERS GROUP SWEEPS AWARDS

CENTERVILLE—A clean sweep in community project awards was the accomplishment last week of the Washington Union high school Future Farmers of America chapter.

Under the direction of Paul Dougherty, agriculture instructor at the high school, nearly 40 boys made the trip to Bolada park for field and sports competition. Twelve future farmer chapters were represented. They came from an area between Cambria and Hayward.

In the sports events, the boys tied for first place in the soft ball games. Paul Rivers of Alvarado captained the local team. Robert Whipple of Decoto won first place in diving.

Outstanding award for the chapter came when the judges gave it first place for having the best group of community projects.

In the competition for the best single community project, the boys also took first place with their commercial garden at the school.

Individual awards went to Takeo Fudenna in the field crops division, ad to Anthony Silva in the nursery crops division. Peter Bunting took second place in meat bird projects for his 200 barred rock chickens while Fong Loy was given third place in orchard projects for his fourth interest in 14 acres of apricots.

Howard Chappell, regional supervisor, complimented the chapter on its outstanding work. He declared that the quality of its performance entitled the boys to the title of acual farmers rather than future farmers.

Model T Ford starting contests and horse harnessing contests added greatly to the sport interest of the meeting. Many of the boys had amusing experiences in their attempts to harness horses, owing to the fact that most of them have been brought up on ractor operated farms and they know little of working with horses.

Those who made the trip from Washington Townshisp were Edward Azaveda, Manuel Alameda, Joe Azaveda, Leonard Bettencourt, Hideo Baba, Peter Bunting, Manuel Cardeniz, Raymond Diaz, Clifford Dinsmore, Thomas Duarte, August Duarte, Martin Duarte, George Enos, David Escobar, Billy Foster, Manuel Garcia, Albert Hinkley, Yoshio Inouye, Daniel Juarez, Alvin King, Joseph Kato, Makoto Kihara, James Komatsu, Joe Kaltner, Edwin Luiz, Melvin Luna, Albert Maciel, Edward Martinez, Chikara Masuda, Albert Pine, Paul Rivers, Warren Silva, Dudley Silva, Anthony Silva, George J. Silva, Robert Whipple, Lloyd Amaral, Leroy Naiia, Bill Ahui, Claude Taylor, William Mette, Paul Dougherty and Newell Rocha.

ANDERSON MOVES TO NILES

CENTERVILLE—Clyde E. Anderson, jeweler and stationer in Centerville for the past 15 years, is moving into his new place of business in Niles adjoining the site of the old post office. The family will retain their residence in Centerville. During his years in business here Mr. Anderson has made many friends who regret his removal to the neighboring town.

Rosicrucians Building San Jose Planetarium

CENTERVILLE—Modern science now adds realism to the Biblical story of the Three Wise Men and the Sacred star of the East. The new Rosicrucian Planetarium, being rushed to completion in San Jose, California, the fourth in the United States, will reveal astronomically the heavens as they were at the time of Christ. The apparatus being installed will project mechanically into a huge fifty-foot dome the positions of the stars, planets and constellations as they were more than twenty centuries ago.

Materialistic astronomers contend, says Miss Phoebe Ormsby of Centerville, local member of the Rosicrucian Order, that the Biblical phenomenon was due to the rising of a heliacal star. Heliacal stars are only periodically visible, and derive their names from the fact that they rise or set near the sun. Heliacal stars of centuries previous are now discernible regularly in other areas of the heavens. The astronomical projector of this unique planetarium will make possible a probable identification of the Star of the East. The lecturer, it is said, will manipulate the movement of the planets, sun and moon by a keyboard operatio nsimilar to the manual of a modern organ.

Miss Ormsby also states that in addition to demonstrating the Copernican theory of cosmology now generally accepted by science, the ancient geocentric and Ptolemaic theories of the structure of the universe will be exhibited. The planetarium will be officially dedicated on July 14 on the occasion of the annual convention of the AMORC Rosiccrucian Order.

Irvington School

BY ALICE NITTA

Irvington grammar school students played a good game but they lost 5 to 0 to Niles on Monday. There were many thrills and exciting plays. The umpire was very good and the boys showed good sportsmanship.

The grammar school held a pet show on Friday and pupils paraded with pets through the town. The show was held on the lawn in front of the school. The teachers were judges of the contests and many of the participants were spectators.

Children who entered the pet show and received prizes were as follows:

GROUP 1

Liveliest dog, Wallace Stanley; largest pet, a goat, Billy Santana; smallest pet, a turtle, Frank Scamon; most unusual pet, a lamb, Howard Henry; best cared for pet, a dog, Betty Corey.

GROUP 2

Best chicken, Bobby and Marjory Hunt; bird, canary, Dorothy Freitas; most unusual fowl, Walter Cunha; best dog in group, Patsy Smith; best cat in group, Albert George.

GROUP 3

Smallest dog, Dorothy Enos; smallest cat, Barbara Williams; smallest duck, Walter Correia; smallest chicken, Cozy Souza; smallest rabbit, Jimmy Davis.

Some of the children received certificates from the Latham foundation for their work on posters and composition.

ANNUAL OUT SOON

The eighth grade class is working on its annual which we think is the only grammar school annual to be published yearly in this district.

"The Sunbonnet Girl" is the title of the operetta that the Irvington grammar school will present on June 10. The play is in two acts and Virginia Scamon has the part of the Sunbonnet girl.

HOUSE SHORTAGE CURTAILS NILES PUPILS NUMBERS

NILES—Lack of housing facilities in Niles is the direct cause of a decrease of 10 per cent in attendance of pupils at the Niles grammar school, E. Dixon Bristow, principal, reported to the Chamber of Commerce at Monday's regular meeting.

Many families have been obliged to move elsewhere because adequate accommodations could not be obtained in Niles, the principal declared.

COST OF STREET SIGNS FOR NILES $100, ESTIMATE

NILES—Street signs for Niles will cost in the neighborhood of $100, according to John Brown, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce committee in charge of the project. Brown made his report to the organization at its regular meeting in the Peerless grill.

The group voted to purchase space in the souvenir program of the S. S. E. Holy Ghost fiesta and discussed wording of its advertisement which will appear in the southern Alameda county publicity book.

Bakersfield.—Indicating an increase during the last five years of 15,210 persons, or approximately 18.4 per cent, the population of Kern County is rapidly approaching the 100,000 mark. The figure established, following a comprehensive survey, is 97,329.

Washington. — The $167,000,000 Central Valleys project received a setback last week when the House rejected Senate amendments to the Interior Department appropriation bill providing $58,000,000 for Western reclamation. One of two Senate propositions would have authorized Central Valleys as a Federal undertaking and the second would have made an initial appropriation of $16,000,000 for the project.

Weaverville.—I. M. Weaver, science teacher in the Trinity High School, recently entertained fifteen of his pupils at a dinner which featured fried rattlesnake, killed and prepared by himself. All agreed that the meat savored of fish and chicken, although more delectable. The group formed a Rattlesnake Club, which will meet annually to dine on rattlesnake meat.

San Francisco.—The semi-annual survey of the Industrial Association of San Francisco showed private building employment is more than twice the number of tradesmen that were on jobs here a year ago. The Association reported an increase of 2,660 tradesmen employed on private work, or a total of 4,711, compared with 2,051 in May last year.

Butte City.—Scores of the 500 persons who attended the funeral of Dr. W. W. Gatliff here were brought into the world by the physician, who was one of the last remaining family doctors of the old school of medicine. Members of the Glenn County Medical Association attended in a body, and the funeral procession was more than three miles long.

San Francisco. — The United States census bureau was all wrong when it announced that California had lost 7-10 of 1 per cent in population since 1930, according to the State chamber of commerce. A population of 6,360,000, or a 12 per cent increase over 1930, is claimed by the State chamber.

Nevada City.—Regional Forester S. B. Show has issued an announcement authorizing foresters in all national forests in northern California and western Nevada to enforce the shovel and ax regulation, effective June 1. Also to be enforced are the regulations regarding camp fire permits and the prohibition of smoking in the Tahoe National Forest except in camps, places of habitation and in special posted areas.

Hoeppel of California for conspiracy to sell an appointment to West Point has been affirmed unanimously by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Hoeppel and his son, Charles J. Hoeppel, were sentenced to from four months to one year in jail by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

San Jose.—A two-year closed season on wild flowers is advocated by the California Wild Flower Conservation League. Mrs. Bertha M. Rice, authority on wild flowers and one of the leaders of the movement, declared excessive picking of wildflowers threatens extermination of many varieties and that a closed season will give the plants opportunity to mature enough seeds to recuperate losses.

Washington.—The war department supply bill, which contains an appropriation of approximately $800,000 for Sacramento River flood control, was signed by President Roosevelt last week.

Daytime Tailleurs of Net or Lace

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

ALMOST significant trend in current fashion is the preference shown for materials that are decidedly sheer. Not only does the employment of dainty sheers pertain to the evening mode but the real news lies in the fact of their outstanding vogue for practical daytime wear. From all style centers comes the persistent report of the supremacy of nets, laces, marquisettes, tulles, mousseline de soie and various other media of like character.

The fact that designers have taken to tailoring net as if it were a heavier material is providing one of the most exciting and fascinating ventures e'er recorded in the annals of fashion history. To refer to the new tailored net suits and ensembles as costumes of sheer delight is no mere play on words for they are just that—delightfully cool, sheer and smart as can be to wear on a late spring or a midsummer day.

A jacket suit strictly tailored of net in black, navy, Dubonnett red or any other dark color is about the neatest daytime fashion one could choose for immediate and summer wear. The net employed for these practical tailleurs is of an especially firm and dependable weave which, however, does in nowise detract from its sheer coolness.

Tailored frocks of printed net (many suits are also of net prints) are among the big successes of the season. A very handsome dress of plaid-patterned net is worn by the young woman seated in the group pictured. It is ideal to wear to an afternoon bridge party. In fact it is the dress-ideal for most any daytime social event where one hopes to look smartly gowned and to keep cool at the same moment. The sheer frill that enhances this dress is also an important style note for these frilly accents are inevitable this season if you would be chic. By all means have a printed net frock, it is exactly the sort that you will love to be wearing the whole summer through.

Lace for daytime wear has come definitely into its own this season. White cotton alencon makes up stunningly, as you will see by the swank gown to the left in the illustration. For all its tailored simplicity, it takes its place charmingly and definitely for afternoon wear and the cocktail hour. This attractive model features the newest silhouette. It buttons demurely all the way down the front, and has a little stitched collar and cuffs of white linen. Lace has every advantage in tailored clothes, for it has pattern and texture in itself that allows for no extra trimmings or furbelows.

The tailored day dress centered in the group is as honest-to-goodness a product of the lace looms as the cobwebby laces and various cotton laces to which we have been accustomed. The dress is made of wool in one of the fabric lace types so much talked of this year. The colors are navy and gray with an accent of navy wool for the neckline and belt. Rosevienne of Paris is the creator of this high-style gown. The model wears it very smartly with a dark tulle Dache hat.

DARK BLOUSE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Wear a dark blouse with your light suit and be fashionable. Very smart folk are carrying out this edict by toning up their natural or white linen suits with blouses in navy, brown, black or Dubonnet red linen. The ensemble in the picture selected from among showings in the Chicago wholesale market district plays up the slogan now popular in fashion circles that three fabrics are better than one or even two for the spring and summer costume. In this instance the color of the blouse picks up the leading shade in the plaid of the jacket suit.

Amethyst Jewelry

The tremendous vogue for purple and violet in the fashion scheme has brought back the amethyst as a favored stone for jewelry. Amethyst necklaces and clips are being shown in Paris to wear with new gowns in these tones.

VEGETABLE COLORS DOMINATE STYLES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Vegetable colors will dominate the summer styles, according to a fashion preview held in New York. Rhubarb pink, wax-bean, parsley green, red cabbage and garden blue (bluebonnet) were shown in every gown or its accessories. Hats were all in color, contrasting with the gown.

Two organza frocks for lunching in town indicated that dark sheers will replace prints for summer wear. With a black organza tunic dress was worn a large Swiss hair hat in rhubarb pink, with black streamers at the back. Gloves in rhubarb and nail polish in rose, carried out the color of the hat.

The ensemble that won the biggest hand was a bicycle culotte of Mt. Airy cloth. Beautifully tailored and practically wrinkle-proof, this new fabric made its formal bow to the world of fashion. Under her pert, tiny straw fedora, the model wore a light tan make-up and rust nails and lips carrying out the offred tone of her belt and scarf.

Coats shown for travel were of tweed or lightweight wool with exaggerated shoulders. Long coats were fitted at the waist; swagger, boxy models were finger length. Particularly effective was a swagger top-coat in red cabbage over a navy suit. The mannish line of the large rolled straw fedora was softened by a veil, both in navy. Shoes and bag were navy, and ruby lips and nails carried out the purple red tone of the coat.

Prints Are Designed for Girls Who Take to Golf

The golf-minded girl may carry a country club course on her back this season, if she keeps an eye on the new prints which manufacturers are introducing. Topping the list for novelty patterns introduced this season is the fairways print, ornamented with an entire 18-hole golf course. Designers also have taken inspiration from sea and sky to introduce figured cottons and silks containing piscatorial prints and the signs of the zodiac.

Dime Will Weigh Half a Ton on New "Weight Microscope"

A dime weighs 1,025 pounds, or half a ton, in a new ultra centrifuge, a "weight microscope," the first of its kind in the United States, announced by the duPont company's science experimental station at Wilmington, Del.

This centrifuge, designed by the Swedish scientist, Dr. The Svedburg, does for weight what a microscope does for size. But where the ordinary microscope multiplies size, this "microscope" multiplies actual weight.

Size does not change. Thus molecules or small bunches of atoms which never can be seen by a light microscope become so heavy that scientists can visualize the "parts" of which they are made and tell how they are put together.

Many processes of industry and puzzles of medicine and human body structure are at present hidden in this still unknown structure of the sort of "giant" protein moleculars which this new "microscope" lays bare.

The centrifuge resembles the hub of an axle. It is a 20-pound steel disc seven inches in diameter.

A Square Deal

FAIR play and the square deal are modern watch-words. We all like the sound of them, and we are glad they have come to be common in the nation's vocabulary and the nation's thought. Now the next thing is to translate them into the little everyday acts of private individuals. They are just as good for our relations with our employees as for our relations with nations; they are no more necessary for the dealings with great trusts than for dealings with little distrusts by which we fail to give our neighbor his rightful dues.

ROBOT EXPLORERS ARE SENT UP INTO THE STRATOSPHERE

The secrets of the sky are being discovered by balloons. These robot explorers climb ten miles into the stratosphere from Kew observatory, where they are launched by Professor Paneth. On reaching the ten-mile limit they burst, and the vacuum flask, carried by each, opens automatically, collects a sample of air, reseals itself and floats home by parachute. Self-registering instruments record the temperature and the maximum height reached.

Their main object is to discover what happens to helium, the rare gas which is set free when radio-active materials break down into commoner elements such as lead, a process that takes thousands of years.

The balloons also explore thunder clouds in order to find out how the source of atmospheric electricity is replenished. Little pilot balloons calculate the height of clouds. Their rising speed is constant, and the number of seconds they take to disappear shows the height of the lowest cloud layer. Twenty-two miles is the soaring record of an unmanned balloon.—Tit-Bits.

OBSEQUIES HELD FOR FRANK RANSEL

IRVINGTON—John Ransel, 53, world war veteran, who passed away last week at Fairmont hospital after an illness of several months, was given burial in the Legion plot at Lone Tree cemetery, Hayward. The funeral was conducted at Berge's mortuary, Irvington. A native of Mission San Jose, Mr. Ransel had spent most of his life in Washington Township, residing at Irvington. He was formerly constable. His widow, Mary, and five small children survive, also three brothers William of Irvington, Frank of Los Banos, and Tom of San Francisco.

The road to hell needs no guide posts.

Justice is with the side having the best lawyers.

Bell Bridge to Be Built Soon

DECOTO—At the last meeting of the Decoto chamber of commerce it was reported that bids for the new Bell ranch bridge will be opened about June 2 or 3. Construction on the bridge will probably begin about one month later.

The chamber of commerce is also trying to have larger water mains put in west of H street and south of Railroad avenue. In case of a fire the present water mains are not large enough to offer much resistance.

The question of a reduction on the telephone rate for the district was discussed.

VETERANS' BONUS NOT ASSIGNABLE

NILES—The bonds to be issued to veterans in settlement of the bonus, or checks in lieu thereof, will be delivered only to the address of the beneficiary veteran, according to information received by American Legion Post, No. 195 at Niles. Applications will not be acceptable in any case where the address given is "in care of" any individual, group or firm.

In explanation of this ruling it is reported that some eager salesmen throughout the country, have induced veterans to buy in advance and have their bonds sent to the dealers as security for the sale. They overlook the fact that the bonds nor their proceeds can be assigned.

Postoffices at Oakland, San Jose, Berkeley and San Francisco have been designated as paying centers for the bonus, Postmaster General Farley announced.

Bonus bonds will be sent out on June 15 from Washington. All will be sent as registered mail. Farley also said he had instructed carriers to "go out of their way" to assist in their delivery. Identification will be required of all veterans.

If a veteran wants to cash his bonus bonds, he must get them certified at his local postoffice. If the postmaster or designated employees know him, no witnesses are necessary; otherwise he must have two witnesses who are knewn to the postal workers and who will identify him.

After proper identification and surrender of his bond, the veteran will be given an interim receipt. Then all he needs do is to wait for his special Treasury Department check to arrive from one of the 241 designated paying postoffices.

San Leandro Man Is Assembly Candidate

SAN LEANDRO—(To the Editor)—May I take this opportunity to notify your readers that I will soon be a candidate for the assembly in the thirteenth district on the Republican ticket for the assembly?

Among the things I might mention at this time I favor are the building of a complete new highway through the Altamont Pass which I believe is needed more than any project of its kind in Northern California as the completion of the Bay bridge will soon be a reality and we want to bring the Valley towns that much closer to the Bay region.

Consolidation of counties to eliminate duplication of county governments and thus save the taxpayers considerable money may have merit in certain sections and is worthy of consideration.

The board of equalization should reduce the number of employees on state payroll as there are too many men drawing pay that are not necessary in the sales tax and liquor departments.
